Randall Cieri (Guitar / Vocals) – Randall has developed as a local musician, paying his way through San Jose State by tutoring piano and music theory. In 1988, he was the recipient of San Jose State's "Outstanding Instrumentalist Award" for excellence on the guitar. He graduated with honors in 1989 with a B.A. in Music and a minor in Creative Arts. Since graduation, he has been songwriting and playing with local bands with progressive leanings such as Songquest. He has gained a strong following as one of the best hard rock lead guitarists in the Bay Area.

Tim Franks (Drums and Electronic Percussion) Referred to as "T-Bone" by friends and process servers, Tim has been developing his skills ever since playing in his school drum lines and is now highly respected as a very creative improvisational drummer with great control of acoustic as well as electronic percussion. Highly influenced by drummers such as Mike Portnoy (Dream Theater) and Neil Pert (Rush) he is always striving to attain the next level.

Brad Mayol (Vocals and Keyboards) Responsible for the dual role of holding down most of the lead vocals and playing various keyboard rhythms Brad has become a major force in the Epoch sound. Majoring in music in college has given him the knowledge that is key to creating the support that is so important. With influences ranging from Peter Gabriel to Ozzy Osbourne his vocal style has a wide range of melodic overtones.

Mike Underwood (Bass and Vocals) Known for his powerful riffs and original song writing, Mike has been playing for many years in local South Bay bands and constantly striving to find the right set of musicians to create a new hard rock sound. As a fan of such greats as John Paul Jones (Led Zeppelin) Chris Squire (Yes) and modern day bands such as Soundgarden and Tool he knows it's possible to hammer out a new "epoch" of music!
